Conflict Minerals Statement 1502 Dodd Frank Wall Street Reform

April 10, 2013

To: CSI Customers

CSI Technologies does not intentionally source any of its materials from areas under investigation for conflict minerals suppliers and makes the following statement of compliance.

1. CSI Technologies strives to have a Conflict Free supply chain, and is committed to sourcing products and materials from non-conflict sources.
2. CSI Technologies expects that its suppliers have processes in place to trace their materials and products to ensure that Conflict Minerals contained in products do not originate from mines within the DRC and the surrounding region.
3. CSI Technologies will work with suppliers with underdeveloped processes, providing information and guidance in an attempt to increase supply chain transparency.

CSI provides all suppliers a "Reasonable Country of Origin survey". This survey must be completed by those suppliers to ensure continued eligibility to do business with CSI.

Suppliers will also need to certify, in writing, that they have procedures in place to demonstrate that materials and products are sourced in accordance with CSI Technologies standards,

Future Steps.

Due to the complexity of this new regulation and the implications to the supply chain, CSI Technologies is not prepared to issue any statement other than the one above that certifies our manufacturing process.

If component level testing is desired, it must be formally requested via email and at that time, estimated completion times and cost for investigation will be supplied.

We are dedicated to assuring that the products we provide to you meet all requirements or standards please contact our technical team for any questions regarding this statement
